Let's play…

BANG!

What do I need?

- Container to place cards into (bucket or jar)

Print and cut out two copies of one of the following sets of skill-practice cards (select the set of cards you want your students to practice the most):

- Upper and Lower-Case Letter Cards
- Number Cards
- Shape Cards
- Sight Word Cards

Print and cut out the following set of cards:

- Bang Cards

How do I play?

1. Gather into a small group with your students.

2. Place all cards (the skill-practice cards and the Bang cards) into a container. Depending on the group size, you can add or subtract Bang Cards to fit the number of kids.

3. Set a timer for how long you want to play.

4. Pass the container around and have each student pull out one card at a time.

5. Ask the student to identify the card. If the student identifies the card correctly, they get to keep the card.

6. If they do not correctly identify the card, they can ask for two choices by saying, "Two choices please." You can then give the student a choice between two ways to identify the card (for example, "Is this P or B?"). If the student is correct, they get to keep the card. If not, the student must place the card back in the container.

7. If a student pulls out a Bang Card, they must put all their cards back into the container.

8. When the time is up, the student with the most cards wins.
